Highlight 2009 Kawasaki lineup

2009 Ninja ZX-14

The three meanest bikes on the planet – the ZX-14, ZX-6R and the KFX450R – now look as sick as they really are thanks to the special Monster Energy package that includes gleaming black bodywork dripping with Monster Energy graphics, black frame and black wheels.

Ninja ZX-14 Monster Energy

For riders looking to shock and awe their rivals, the sinister looking special edition ZX-14 Monster Energy is the sportbike of choice. Its low-end torque, mid-range surge and legendary Ninja peak power place it at the top of the sportbike food chain.

Ninja ZX-6R Monster Energy

Thanks to a extensive overhaul including weight shaving, improving mass centralization, refining engine and chassis behavior, adding a revolutionary fork design; the new Ninja ZX-6R delivers the elusive calm and confident handling that riders need to push the envelope.

KFX450R Monster Energy

Riders looking for a race-ready, high performance ATV equipped with class-leading performance and technology straight out of the crate need look no farther than the Kawasaki KFX450R. Every component was chosen to maximize performance on the track or in the woods and put riders at the head of the pack with minimal fuss.

2009 Versys

Kawasaki Versys

Crunch together the words "versatility" and "system" and you've got the Versys, a liquid-cooled twin-cylinder motorcycle that's part dual-sport, part touring bike and part sport bike. It is the perfect combination for riding to work or riding around the world.

KX450F

Team Green's big bore fuel injected four-stroke motocrosser comes back light, strong and nimble with a host of race-only features designed to carry you to the podium. Get it with or without the Monster Energy treatment.

2009 KFX450R

Teryx 750 4x4

Powered by the same 749cc 90-degree V-twin engine that gives the Brute Force 750 its high performance, this side-by-side is all about recreation, but retains enough of its working heritage to tackle everyday tasks. Excellent drive train and transmission allow the driver to harness the full potential of this incredible machine.

Voyager

Kawasaki's first full-dress V-Twin touring motorcycle, the new Voyager features a large frame-mounted front fairing and windshield and ample storage, plus all the luxury features you need for comfortable, long distance touring.
